Partners: For each of Wilton's sustainability- and community culture-related events that are described as part of this Action, the partners are described in the appropriate column of the template. Special mention should be made of the other municipalities that are currently part of the ad hoc organization known as Sustainable Fairfield County — <http://www.livegreenct.org/sustainable-fairfield-county/> which Wilton co-founded. Each mbr Fairfield County municipality orchestrates and hosts a specially-themed Sustainability event (Nature, Zero Waste, Green Wheels, Farm-to-Table, etc.). The month-by-month timing is coordinated with fellow member towns, and the towns pledge to cross-promote one another's events so there can be broader public participation. A primary example of this is Wilton Go Green's Zero Waste Faire, held in March.

Additional Information: "Participate": This friendly directive in a one-word sign is posted around Town Hall in Wilton, and we are pleased to report that good public participation in Town affairs is now the norm. Once mostly a bedroom community for New York City commuters, today the Town of Wilton is truly blessed by having so many dedicated volunteers who work together to solve problems and make the town a great place to live and work and go to school. The collaboration among the town's many NGOs makes community events quite enjoyable. A special note about our biggest community event to date: The 2nd annual "Zero Waste Faire" is one of three different waste management initiatives the the Town is doing. Each is done for a specific and separate group of stakeholders, and the Faire is geared to serve residents of all ages from towns in southwestern CT. We are now meeting with staffers from Social Services and Senior Services in the region to ask how our 3rd annual Faire next March might feature new activities and exhibits of special interest to older adults.

9. Strategic Materials Management

9.4 Compost Organic Waste

5 Points

Approved Information: We are applying for 5 points in Action 7.1a — Food Waste Prevention in Wilton's four public schools' cafeterias. Originally launched in the Fall of 2016 with a special waste audit at our Middlebrook School and the subsequent installation of bins and refrigerators, Wilton's ongoing Zero Waste Schools Program helps students, staff and families change behaviors by diverting the material to the highest and most valuable outlets in the waste ecosystem. Students and staff are asked to sort their waste into five areas: DONATION, compost, recycle, liquid and waste. Participation in our Zero Waste Schools program empowers students by engaging in an environmentally conscious behavior that creates a culture of conservation in our community. The new school year just started this week, and thanks to many lessons learned, the new best practices are off to a good start. Documentation for 5 points: 7.8.1a Wilton Schools Food Waste Prevention educational slide show, updated 3/28/19 7.8.1a Spring 2019 campaign communiqué to parents, 3/18/19 7.8.1a Fall 2018 campaign communiqué to parents, 10/22/18 7.8.1a ZWS Website header, Spring 2019

Partners: One by one and as early as March 2015, Wilton's 4 schools joined the Institute for Sustainable Energy's GreenLEAF Schools program, which helped to establish a District-wide appreciation for being resourceful, starting with School Superintendent Dr. Kevin Smith. So the schools responded positively to the suggestion that the cafeterias all get specially made, clearly designated places for food waste, food donations and recyclable materials. Custodial staff and faculty have been helping the students understand the value of food and other energy-intensive materials that are used to get good food to the right place at the right time. Other assistance comes from Chartwell's (Wilton's contracted school food service company) and the town's MSW haulers.

Additional Information: Note that Wilton has actually launched three different waste reduction programs. Each has a specific and separate group of stakeholders. This "Wilton Zero Waste Schools" program described in this Action 7.1 involves only the town's four public schools and their cafeterias. Wilton's K-12 students are learning respect for the economic and environmental benefits that can be realized if they manage waste responsibly. Waste prevention is the most important aspect of waste management, and helps make the case that "waste is actually a resource in the wrong place."

Documentation Details: 10.1 Wilton Tax Payer Survey Document 10.1 Wilton Flyer - One Page Document Communicating Survey 10.1 October Press Release, text of press release 10.1 November Press Release, text of press release 10.1 Card with URL for tax payer survey 10.1 Wilton Tax Payer Survey Results - shows the results of the survey including those noted on pages 9 & 10 of Wilton's action submission. The salient points of the eight 10.2 documents describe in self-evident ways the Oct 2018 inception of the Zero Waste Schools Coalition, and the enthusiastic regional uptake of the Coalition's mission to prevent and reduce waste in school cafeterias. The longest of those documents is the 4-page ZWS Coalition Member Updates 8.28.19 PDF which briefly describes the recent activities of some of the region's Coalition mbrs — 3 in southwestern CT., and 2 more in nearby Westchester County that have joined our Coalition.

Partners: 10.1 None, other than town staff and various officials. 10.2 ZWS Coalition partners include the Housatonic Resource Recovery Authority, the Center for Eco-Technology from MA, the Dept of Energy & Environmental Protection and representatives from sustainability organizations and schools in Branford, Darien, Durham, Easton, Fairfield, Greenwich, Haddam, Mansfield, Milford, New Canaan, New Haven, Newtown, Norwalk, Redding, Stamford, Waterbury, Weston, Westport and Wilton. Both the Oct 17, 2018 Coalition mtg — its first — and the March 23, 2019 Coalition mtg were hosted by the Wilton High School with School administrators, faculty and custodial staff in attendance.

Additional Information: Note that Wilton has actually launched three different waste reduction programs in the past three years. Each addresses a specific and separate group of stakeholders. As each program grows, we are often surprised at some of the challenges that manifest themselves in very different ways. The Zero Waste Schools Coalition is primarily geared to professional educators, school staffers and parents from eastern CT who advocate for and implement best practices in waste management in school cafeterias. The multi-town collaboration is facilitated by in-person meetings, email communiques to nearly 90 people, templates of attractive signage and promotional materials, and the sharing of lessons learned. Because Coalition members represent large cities as well as small towns, and include people from diverse ethnic and economic backgrounds, the new eco-friendly policies that are being forged will be better and more broadly adoptable, due to the diversity of inputs. Also, progress can be measured quantifiably by tracking over time the weight of the waste categories, be they compost, recyclables or un-re-purposables, and by tracking the amount of un-used food that is being donated. The pride that k-12 students can feel when taking responsibility for the ways they handle meal-related materials should build confidence and environmental stewardship. While building this Coalition, Wilton's leaders have traveled to other municipalities, and learned how various towns manage their municipal transfer stations and hauling contracts. So we look forward to supporting our general populations and our businesses in better waste management practices as well.
