Copy of the slides of the webinar added to the submission on 4/8/25. 3.1.1c Watershed Health Pledge - Submitting for Approval August 2022 Watershed Pledge was added to the News section of Rocky Hill's homepage (attached). Anyone who subscribed to receive updates received an email / SMS as well. Watershed Health Pledge Posted on Rocky Hill's Facebook (attached) Approved in Spring 2022 On March 14, 2022, Rocky Hill's Cora J Belden library hosted Ryan O'Donnell from the CT River Conservancy for a talk on Connecticut Watersheds. Ryan talked about watersheds, that they are a complex system and somewhat difficult to define. He talked about how they are interconnected, so small streams and brooks flow in the Connecticut River and can impact the overall health of the river. He talked about how the CT River Conservancy does periodic water testing in order to monitor the health of the river as well. 3.1.1a New Action Credit (approved Spring 2022) 3.1.1c New Action Credit - submitting for approval August 2022

Additional Information: Webinar Description: Loss of habitat is one of the biggest issues contributing to the decline of pollinators. With the loss of prairies, forests, and other natural areas to development and agricultural use, pollinators are having a harder time finding the resources they need. Emily May from the Xerces Society presented to educate the public on how they can help - learn how easy it is to turn your backyard into a space for pollinators to thrive. With simple steps like adding certain native plants, to limiting pesticide use, you can help preserve and conserve our world's essential pollinator populations. Presenter: Emily May, Xerces Society Attendance: 35 Here is the link for the recording of our Zoom session with Emily May from Xerces Society in April 2022 on Planting for Pollinators.
